HISTORICAL PERSPECTIVE

The Citizen Police Complaint Commission was created by City Charter Amendment by adding Sections 1150 - 1155 and was approved by the voters of the City of Long Beach on April 10, 1990. The Charter Amendment authorized the Commission "to receive, administer and investigate allegations of police misconduct with emphasis on complaints of Excessive Force, False Arrest, and complaints of Racial and/or Sexual overtones".

The Citizen Police Complaint Commission is empowered to conduct hearings and through the City Attorney's Office, may subpoen witnesses and records when necessary to facilitate the fact-finding process. The Commission is a fact-finding body and makes findings and recommendations which are submitted to the City Manager for review and final adjudication.

In August 1990, the City Council nominated and the Mayor appointed the eleven Commissioners, and on September 5, 1990, they were sworn in at their first official meeting. After intensive orientation and training, they began their mission of investigating allegations of police misconduct filed against Long Beach Police Officers.

The Commission's primary role is that of fact-finder; it is neither an advocate for the Complainant nor for the Police Officer. The Commission's obligation is to ensure that professional police conduct is maintained at all times.

The investigative process is directed toward the review of police actions. Although the Commission Investigator may conduct investigations independent from the Police Department, such investigations are only necessary when the Police Department has failed to conduct a thorough comprehensive investigation. If a review and analysis of the Police Department investigation proves to be deficient, then an independent Commission investigation is commenced by CPCC Staff. This has not been a significant problem and excellent cooperation from the Department has been experienced.

THE EVOLUTION OF THE COMMISSION

The Citizen Police Complaint Commission system and process of investigating complaints is not a perfect one. The manner in which complaints are received and investigated is very cumbersome and fragmented.

With the creation of CPCC, some citizens envisioned that comprehensive investigations would be conducted by independent Investigators hired by the Commission. However, the Charter amendment never provided a budget or funding sources for the Staff and did not empower Staff Investigators to demand documents or compel testimony from Police Officers or City employees.

The City Manager has financed the Executive Director position and Staff support out of his budget to provide needed services to the Commission.

The arduous process of receiving, reviewing, investigating and completing personnel investigations hampers and impedes swift and pristine investigations. From the time a complaint is received until the final disposition by the City Manager the process can take as long as one year.

Finding witnesses, interviewing Officers, examining evidence and documents is time-consuming and absorbing. Once the Internal Affairs investigation has been completed and reviewed by appropriate Command Officers, the investigation is forwarded to CPCC for review and, in some cases, additional investigation. This process at best takes two months in the Police Department and 4 to 6 weeks to process through CPCC staff review and submission to the Commission at their monthly meeting.

CPCC Staff must read, investigate, synthesize, package and mail the completed reports to Commission Members at least one week prior to the monthly meeting. On occasion, Commissioners will return the report for additional investigation.

Despite the impediments and obstacles, this Commission has effectively performed its duties and carried out its responsibilities in yeoman fashion.

In the first five years of this Commission's existence, the Commission has established itself as a competent, sincere and no-nonsense body of citizens of the highest integrity.

The Commission has earned the confidence of the elected Officials, City Administration, Police Department and most important, the Citizens of Long Beach.

1995 REVIEW

In 1995 the Commission showed signs of maturity and focused purpose.

In 1991, the first full year of Commission operation, only complaints that were submitted directly to Commission Staff were the subject of review and/or investigation. It soon became apparent that because of lack of community awareness and newness of the process for filing personnel complaints against Police personnel, few complaints were filed with and recorded by Commission Staff.

In 1992, Commission Staff started reviewing complaints also filed with the Police Department. The complaints reviewed by Staff immediately increased from approximately 8 per month or approximately 24 per month, a 300% increase. 70 to 75% of police complaints are filed originally through the Police Department. This percentage has held true over the past five years.

It does appear that crime continues to decrease, and complaints against Police Officers also show a decline. However, with the sanction of the Commission, Staff has exercised prudent discretion in reviewing all complaints against Police Officers. Complaints without any foundation on their face and complaints which are of an administrative proclivity are forwarded to the Police Chief for his internal process.

Based on the manner in which the Police Department processes complaints and their method of classifying complaints, there is no precise accuracy in making comparisons of complaints by the two entities.

The more accurate comparison is to look at the yearly statistics of CPCC; however, even that process has some degree of inconsistency built in because of human involvement and judgment. The process is not an exact science and yearly totals and statistics should not be used as criteria to evaluate police behavior.

The more important factor is the objective process used by Commission Members and Staff to establish the facts as lucidly as possible and apply appropriate responses and judgment to verify proper or improper police conduct.

CITIZEN POLICE COMPLAINT COMMISSION

1995 STATISTICAL SUMMARY

In the Commission's first full year of operation (1992), they received 278 complaints. In 1993, that number dropped to 241.

In 1994, due to a policy implemented to accept and investigate all complaints, including some invalid on their face and some service-related, the number of complaints received dramatically rose to 381, for an almost 60% increase.

In 1995, complaints received leveled at the 241 mark once again, a 37% decrease.

The policy established in the past two years, as it relates to the receipt of complaints, seems most suited to ensure accuracy and comparable measurements from year to year and will be continued.

During 1995, the Commission received 585 allegations of police misconduct. Of that number, 124 allegations (21%) were classified as non-misconduct or "inferior service" complaints. These complaints were received and filed.

CATEGORIES OF MISCONDUCT ALLEGATIONS

Of the 585 allegations filed, 461 were scrutinized for complete investigations by the Police Department and CPCC Staff. Approximately 80% of allegations filed were considered valid on their face and warranted a comprehensive investigation.

The allegations were categorized as follows:

- Improper Use of Force constituted 31.3% of allegations filed.
- Unprofessional Conduct constituted 29.2% of allegations filed
- Neglect of Duty constituted 17.4% of allegations filed
- Improper Conduct and Offensive Remarks accounted for 19.6% of allegations filed.

FINDINGS

The findings on the allegations investigated fall into the following categories:

- Thirty-nine or 6.7% were classified SUSTAINED
- Two hundred ninety-six or 51% were classified as INCONCLUSIVE
- Six or 1% were classified as EXONERATED
- One hundred and eighteen or 20.2% were classified as UNFOUNDED

SUSTAINED ALLEGATIONS

The percentages of sustained complaints fluctuated over the years. In 1992, 2.7% of allegations were sustained. In 1993, the figure rose to 13% and in 1994, it rose even higher to 19%. In the year 1995, sustained allegations dropped back down to 6.6%

In 1995, of the allegations sustained, 19 or 49% were Neglect of Duty allegations. 4 or 10% of the allegations were sustained for Improper Use of Force. Offensive Language/Profanity constituted 7 or 18%.

USE OF FORCE

In 1992, 42% of all complaints filed were for the Improper Use of Force. That percentage dipped to 23% in 1993, rose slightly to 26% in 1994, and rose somewhat significantly in 1995 to 31.3%.

DEMOGRAPHICS

Although the great majority of complaints, approximately 65 to 70%, were filed through the Police Department, a significant number are still being received by Commission Staff, most of them from detainees in custody in the City jail facility. African-Americans, who constitute approximately 14% of the City population, continue to file more than 40% of complaints against Police Officers. 47% of the complaints filed in 1991 were by African-Americans. That percentage decreased to 35% in 1992, 36% in 1993, 38% in 1994, and rose to 43% in 1995.

Caucasians filed 29%, 20% were filed by Latinos.

TRENDS

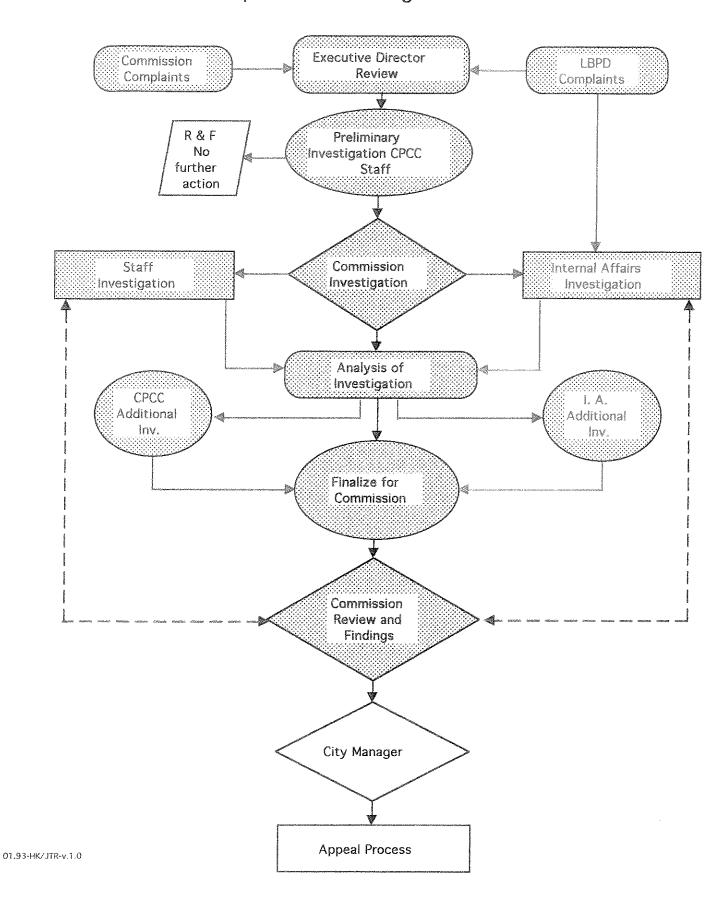

The statistics for 1995 did not indicate any dramatic change in the trend lines as they relate to race or ethnicity of complainants or type of allegations filed by Complainants.

Although Improper Use of Force allegations do show a rise in 1995 from 1994, they are still below the 42% recorded in 1992.

Major areas of concern focus on complaints alleging Officers failing to properly investigate; failing to take reports; failing to care for property; failing to take appropriate action, and offensive language and the use of profanity.

The Chief of Police has been advised of the observations of the Commissioners regarding these types of complaints and has restructured the Early Warning Monitoring System to define trends or patterns that Officers may be developing, which could lead to errant behavior.

City of Long Beach Citizen Police Complaint Commission Complaint and Investigation Process

CPCC FINDINGS

UNFOUNDED

When the allegation clearly has no basis or foundation in fact and there is no information or evidence that supports the allegation, and/or the Complainant has been found to be untruthful based on factual information.

EXONERATED

When the act complained of did occur and under normal conditions would be considered misconduct; however, mitigating circumstances in the judgement of the Commission make the act appropriate and proper.

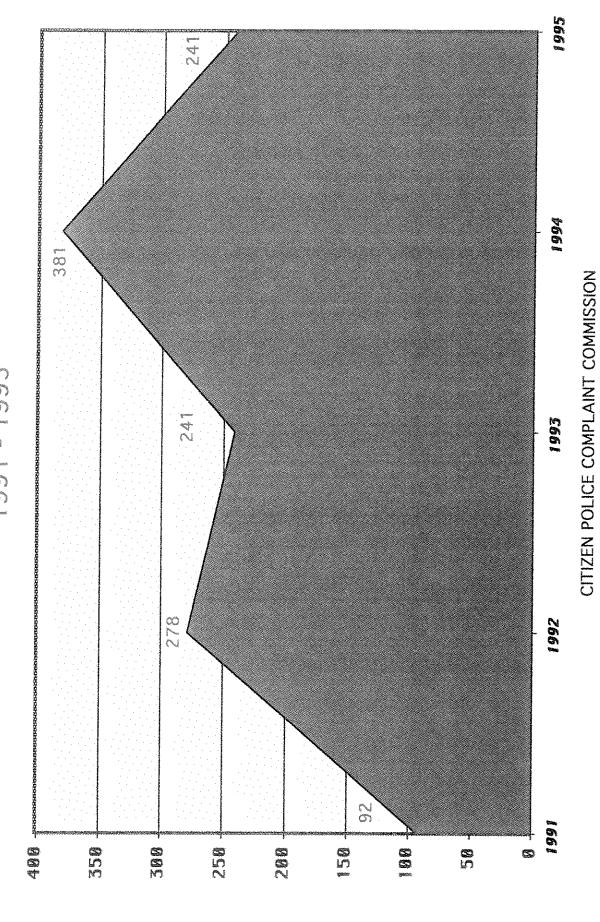

INCONCLUSIVE (formerly NOT SUSTAINED)

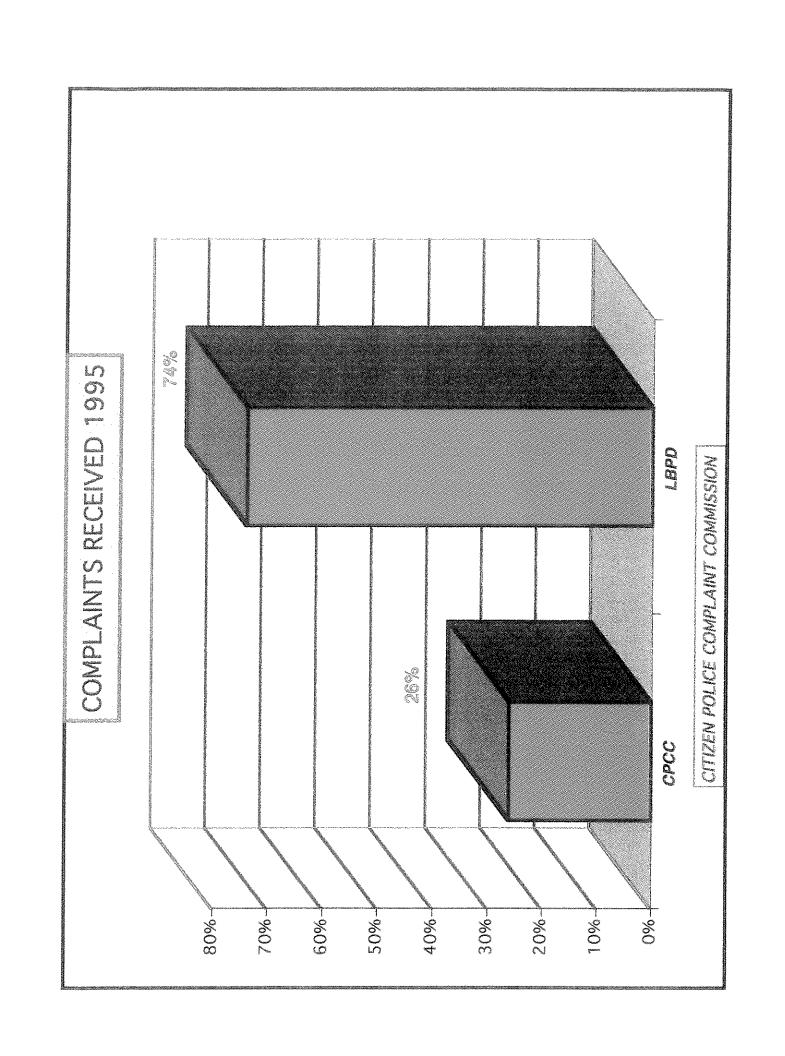

When the allegations cannot be verified by evidence, information or independent witnesses and the officers deny the allegation, and there are no independent witnesses to support the officer's statements.

SUSTAINED

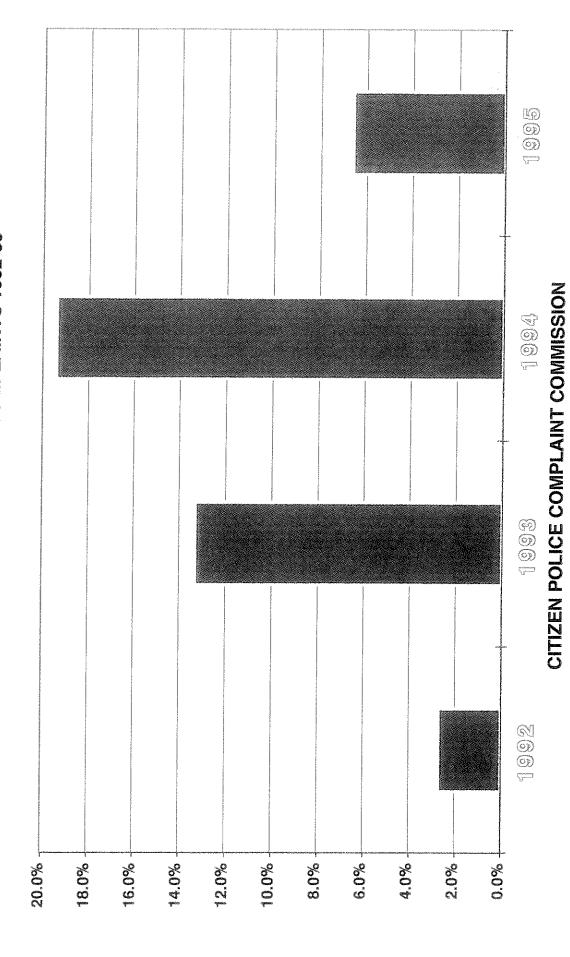

When the act or failure to act is established and is misconduct, and that act or failure to act is supported by evidence, information or independent witnesses.
